

www.bigmarker.com/communities/doctoralnet/conferences

UPCOMING WEBINARS

Organizing your ideas for writing

Monday, October 14, 2019 · 3:30 PM IST

You know what you want and need to say in your essay/ thesis/ dissertation/, but do you know how to organize those ideas so as to communicate them effectively? In this webinar, we will talk about how to do that.

Argumentation: What is it? Why is it so important?

Tuesday, October 15, 2019 · 3:30 PM IST

Some say building a solid argument is the key to all good academic writing. It certainly is the key to all research. You won't pass defense or viva, or get published without this skill and while some may stumble across it, most of us benefit fro...

Using Citation Style to Your Advantage: APA, Harvard, and Chicago

Thursday, October 17, 2019 · 4:00 PM IST

Citations are an important aspect of writing academic papers. The more you know the rules that govern the style you are required to use, the better the quality of your papers. This webinar will give you information about how to use three of the mo...

How to go from personal writing to academic writing

Monday, October 21, 2019 · 3:30 PM IST

Being a graduate student, you certainly know how to write. However, are you sure that you know and apply the formal style of academic writing? This webinar expands your understanding of the differences between personal writing and academic writing.

Doing a literature review: How to approach it

Tuesday, October 22, 2019 · 3:30 PM IST

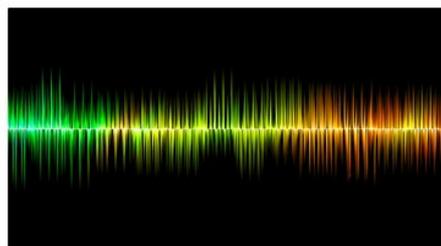

Literature review establishes the foundation of your study or academic paper. Since the input information can be overwhelming, you need to have a plan to do it. In this webinar, how to do that is discussed.

Storytelling Science in Graduate Research

Monday, October 28, 2019 · 3:30 PM GMT

David Boje - Join David Boje and Grace Ann Rosile as they discuss their latest book: Storytelling Science. These two professors from New Mexico State University have written together and separately over 10 books involved in leadership, organizati...

Setting the tone and stance in academic papers

Thursday, October 31, 2019 · 4:00 PM GMT

When you write your academic papers, you must be able to make your position clear in the most appropriate way. Do you know how to do it? No? Then, this webinar is a good option for you.

Taking your graduate degree to the work environment

Monday, November 4, 2019 · 3:30 PM GMT

Whether you are a Masters or Doctoral student you need to think ahead in order to be prepared for your next job. Full of provocative ideas this webinar helps you investigate your job market, position your graduate degree for success whether or no...

Career transference 101: CV vs resume, what is required and expected

Tuesday, November 5, 2019 · 3:30 PM GMT

Looking at the 10 transferable skills from the World Economic Forum, how can you get them to show up in your CV and Resume? What is the difference in these two documents and do you need both?

UPCOMING WEBINARS

Backwards maps, strategy, preparing for graduation & future employment

Wednesday, November 6, 2019 · 3:30 PM GMT

Why map backwards? This technique for plotting the course from now until graduation works for you whether you are 6 months or two years away from completing your work. The secret is finding out all the variables you may not have thought of - come ...

Critical analysis: A door to success

Thursday, November 7, 2019 · 4:00 PM GMT

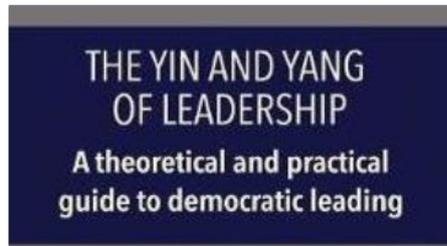

Any graduate student has been told, at least once, "you have to be more critical" and felt discouraged when realizing she/he did not know what the actual expectation was. This webinar provides you a basic knowledge about what you have to do when p...

Negotiating with people who have power over your outcomes

Monday, November 11, 2019 · 4:45 PM GMT

Negotiating through and with people who have power over your graduate outcomes is not easy. We will discuss the ethical standards of the SPS and how to use them to your benefit. The discussion will cover supervisors, committees, professors and w...

Classical or Aristotelian argumentation: How to do it

Thursday, November 14, 2019 · 4:00 PM GMT

Last year, we talk about argumentation in general. This year, we will focus on different types of argumentation and how you can do each one of them. This will be the first webinar of the series. We will present how you can develop classical or Ari...

Extramural Webinar with Francois Heon author of The Yin and Yang of Leadership

Thursday, November 14, 2019 · 5:00 PM GMT

<https://www.eventbrite.com/e/webinar-with-francois-heon-author-of-the-yin-and-yang-of-leadership-tickets-67564074967> Extramural webinar scheduled with Francois Heon, author of the book, The Ying and Yang of Leadership: A Theoretical and Practic...

Bibliographic Software & Spreadsheets as Ways to Ease the Troubles of Writing

Monday, November 18, 2019 · 3:30 PM GMT

Keeping everything straight while writing is hard. Your references, your ideas, their ideas, your logic, their theories, and who said what when. Organization can get you down, unless you strategically use two tools well. One is your bibliograp...

Time, Habits, Focus, Drive, Grit, Tools & Making Your OWN Checklists

Monday, November 18, 2019 · 4:45 PM GMT

Using ours then making your own... Checklists help graduate and postgraduate students and candidates work through the various parts of doing and writing research. But each field is different and YOU have to maneuver through those variations. T...

Using MS Word 365 - a must have tool for graduate writing

Monday, November 25, 2019 · 3:30 PM GMT

Using MS Word 365 - MS has done a good job of incorporating new tools into Word. We'll discuss how to use both old and new tools for setting up your documents, templates, revision, and reference lists

How to increase your work-life-grad balance and decrease your anxiety

Monday, November 25, 2019 · 4:45 PM GMT

Especially apt for a holiday season, however at any time of year the tricky balance between your grad life, personal life and for some work can be anxiety-producing. Students make comments like: "then I became a mom and everything slowed me down..."

UPCOMING WEBINARS

Dialectical or Rogerian argumentation: How to do it

Thursday, November 28, 2019 · 4:00 PM GMT

This webinar will be devoted to guide you within the dialectical or Rogerian way of making argumentation in your academic work.

The challenge of bringing your topic ideas in line with your methodology

Monday, December 2, 2019 · 3:30 PM GMT

Doctoral research is tricky. You have an idea, but then how do you measure it? Once you know how to measure it, who or what will be your sample? Given that sample does the topic still work? This webinar discusses the iterative nature of these ch...

Analytical or Touleminian argumentation: How to do it

Wednesday, December 11, 2019 · 4:00 PM GMT

The last webinar of the argumentation series will focus on letting you know how to perform analytical or Touleminian argumentation in your academic work.

Managing your independence and skill development: for academics and as job prep

Monday, December 16, 2019 · 4:45 PM GMT

Sometimes we get in our own way. It's great at this time of year to look back and then forward to plot a different, more independent and self-assured course for the new year. This group will look where we stumble and what it takes to move on wit...

Following directions: What makes it hard & how to address feedback

Monday, January 20, 2020 · 3:30 PM GMT

Whether in classwork or during the process of research, directions are given in a verbal or written format but may seem mysterious. Or, at other times what is said may not cover all that is meant. We'll discuss what makes for clear directions, h...

Cognitive flexibility and creativity: A path to success

Thursday, January 30, 2020 · 4:00 PM GMT

Finish 2019 reflecting about how being creative and cognitively flexible may help you be successful in life. This webinar will help you know how to master such important skills.

WEBINARS ON DEMAND

Evaluating the quality of your academic writing

Thursday, September 26, 2019 · 4:00 PM IST

Why do you have to wait until feedback is given to you if you can evaluate the quality of your work before submitting it? Knowledge is power and the more you know about what the task you have to perform and how to determine its quality, the better...

What slows us down or confuses? Setting the course for the year

Monday, September 23, 2019 · 4:45 PM IST

The best professional development is driven by YOU, answering your questions. We now have the technology to make that happen! Sign up for the webinar, then go to www.wooclap.com/SLOW and answer the question or ask one of your own. We'll start t...

Coming back to education - Tricks Tips and Hacks for acclimating to graduate work

Monday, September 16, 2019 · 3:30 PM IST

Do you have some apprehension as you start back at university this fall? Maybe its been a while, maybe you took time out for family or work. What is expected? How will it differ from your earlier experiences? What can be done from the beginnin...

WEBINAR LISTING BY DATE

DATE	TOPIC
20190912	Your dissertation: From the idea to the product
20190916	Coming back to education - Tricks Tips and Hacks for acclimating to graduate work
20190923	What slows us down or confuses? Setting the course for the year
20190926	Evaluating the quality of your academic writing
20190930	Personalizing your learning journey to get just what you need and want
20190930	LGBT Academics: Pride on campus - a panel with Deans
20191007	Positive Psychology Helping Attitude and Work Life Balance
20191010	Extramural Webinar with Raj Sisodia, author of The Healing Organization
20191014	Organizing your ideas for writing
20191015	Argumentation: What is it? Why is it so important?
20191017	Using Citation Style to Your Advantage: APA, Harvard, and Chicago
20191021	How to go from personal writing to academic writing
20191022	Doing a literature review: How to approach it
20191028	Storytelling Science in Graduate Research
20191031	Setting the tone and stance in academic papers
20191104	Taking your graduate degree to the work environment
20191105	Career transference 101: CV vs resume, what is required and expected
20191106	Backwards maps, strategy, preparing for graduation & future employment
20191107	Critical analysis: A door to success
20191111	Negotiating with people who have power over your outcomes
20191114	Classical or Aristotelian argumentation: How to do it
20191114	Extramural Webinar with Francois Heon author of The Yin and Yang of Leadership
20191118	Bibliographic Software & Spreadsheets as Ways to Ease the Troubles of Writing
20191118	Time, Habits, Focus, Drive, Grit, Tools & Making Your OWN Checklists
20191125	Using MS Word 365 - a must have tool for graduate writing
20191125	How to increase your work-life-grad balance and decrease your anxiety
20191128	Dialectical or Rogerian argumentation: How to do it
20191202	The challenge of bringing your topic ideas in line with your methodology
20191211	Analytical or Touleminian argumentation: How to do it