

Dublin City University

Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences

School of Communications

Lecturers in Communications (2 posts)

Fixed Term Contracts of up to 5 Years

Introduction

The School of Communications in Dublin City University is Ireland's leading school of communications studies and is now making a number of new Lecturer appointments from 1 September 2014.

The School has particular needs in the following areas - audio/radio production, broadcasting, digital communications, multimedia and journalism, data visualization, graphic art design; animation and information design, and that will be a factor in short-listing and final selection. We are interested in hearing from experienced applicants who can teach across undergraduate and postgraduate media courses.

The School of Communications:

The School of Communications has three undergraduate programmes, six taught postgraduate programmes and a PhD programme. The successful candidates will be expected to play a role in the development and delivery of the School's taught programmes and in the identification and delivery of new programmes in their specialist area. The school offers excellent opportunities for candidates to teach within their own area of research specialisation and to supervise PhD candidates.

The school is committed to high quality research and supports its staff in such work. The school has led research programmes funded by the Irish Research Council, the EU and other national and international donors.

The Successful Candidate

Successful applicants will be:

- Able to instil exceptional production skills in our students.
- Have a strong research profile.
- Contribute to the management and organisation of the School.
- Self-motivated, flexible and adaptable in working across different areas of specialism.

Applicants for the post must hold an honours degree in a relevant discipline, should be qualified to a post-graduate level and have completed a Doctoral qualification in the field. The successful candidates will also have a minimum of three years relevant experience, with a record of high quality university-level teaching. In addition, they should have a proven research background in the area. They will be committed to publish in the highest quality peer-reviewed journals and/ or with high quality book publishers and to securing external research funding supports. The successful candidate will be expected to contribute significantly to curriculum development, teaching and administrative activity in the School of Communications, across all levels and a variety of programmes.

Informal Enquiries to:

Dr. Patrick Brereton, Head of School of Communications

E-mail: pat.brereton@dcu.ie ; Tel. +353 1 700 5440

Further information:

More information on the School, including specific areas of research expertise and details of taught programmes, may be found at:

<http://www.dcu.ie/communications>

Salary Scales:

Lecturer above bar: €50,159 - €76,891

Lecturer below bar: €41,502 - €51,724

€37,352 - €46,552*

* Applies to new entrants to the public sector after 01 January 2011.

Appointment will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Closing date: Thursday 27th March 2014

Application Procedure:

Application forms are available from the DCU Current Vacancies (Open Competitions) website at <http://www.dcu.ie/hr/vacancies/current.shtml> and also from the Human Resources Department, Dublin City University, Dublin 9. Tel: +353 (0)1 700 5149; Fax: +353 (0)1 700 5500 Email: hr.applications@dcu.ie

Applications should be submitted by e-mail to hr.applications@dcu.ie or by Fax: +353 (0)1 700 5500 or by post to the Human Resources Department, Dublin City University, Dublin 9.

Dublin City University is an equal opportunities employer