

Dublin City University
Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences
School of Communications
Lecturer in Journalism

Introduction

The School of Communications in Dublin City University is Ireland's largest and leading school of journalism, multimedia and communications studies and is currently recruiting a Lecturer post from 1 September 2015. Production expertise in Broadcast Journalism is essential in short-listing and final selection.

The School of Communications:

The School of Communications has three undergraduate programmes, six taught postgraduate programmes and a PhD programme. The successful candidate will be expected to play a role in the development and delivery of the School's taught programmes and in the identification and delivery of new programmes in their specialist area. The School offers excellent opportunities for candidates to teach within their own area of research specialisation and to supervise PhD candidates.

The School is committed to high quality research and supports its staff in such work. We have led research programmes supported by the Irish Research Council, the EU and other national and international funders.

The Successful Candidate

The successful applicant will:

- Have relevant and recent industry experience
- Have worked in a multiplatform news environment with specific digital and broadcast experience
- Be able to instil exceptional journalism production skills in our students
- Contribute to the management and organisation of the School
- Be self motivated, flexible and adaptable in working across different areas of specialism.

Applicants for the post must hold an honours degree in a relevant discipline, should be qualified to a post-graduate level and will hold a doctorate degree in a relevant discipline. The successful candidate will also have a minimum of three years relevant experience, with a record of high quality university-level teaching. In addition, the successful candidate should be developing a research profile in the area and will be committed to publishing in the highest quality peer-reviewed journals and/ or with high quality book publishers and to securing external research funding supports. The successful candidate will be expected to contribute significantly to curriculum development, teaching and administrative activity in the School of Communications, across all levels and on a variety of programmes in journalism and communications more generally. Production expertise in broadcast journalism and an ability to teach both undergraduate and postgraduate journalism will be essential in short-listing and final selection.

Informal Enquiries to:

Dr. Patrick Brereton, Head of School of Communications
E-mail: pat.brereton@dcu.ie ; Tel. +353 1 700 5440

Further information:

More information on the School, including specific areas of research expertise and details of taught programmes, may be found at:

<http://www.dcu.ie/communications>

Salary Scales:

Lecturer above bar: €50,159 - €76,891

Lecturer below bar: €37,352 - €51,724

Closing date: 22nd May 2015

Application Procedure:

Application forms are available from the DCU Current Vacancies (Open Competitions) website at <http://www4.dcu.ie/hr/vacancies/current.shtml> and also from the Human Resources Department, Dublin City University, Dublin 9. Tel: +353 (0)1 700 5149; Fax: +353 (0)1 700 5500 Email: hr.applications@dcu.ie

Applications should be submitted by e-mail to hr.applications@dcu.ie or by Fax: +353 (0)1 700 5500 or by post to the Human Resources Department, Dublin City University, Dublin 9.

Dublin City University is an equal opportunities employer