Dublin City University

Dublin City University (DCU) is a leading innovative European University. It is proud to be one of the world's leading Young Universities and is among the world's top 2% globally. DCU is known as Ireland's University of Impact, with a mission to 'transform lives and societies' and focuses on addressing global challenges in collaboration with key national and international partners and stakeholders.

DCU has over 20,000 students in five faculties spread across three academic campuses in the Glasnevin-Drumcondra area of North Dublin. Thanks to its innovative approach to teaching and learning, the University offers a 'transformative student experience' that helps to develop highly sought-after graduates. DCU is currently No. 1 in Ireland for Graduate Employment Rate, and for graduate income (CSO).

DCU is a research-intensive University and is home to a number of SFI-funded Research Centres. The University participates in a range of European and international research partnerships. DCU is also the leading Irish university in the area of technology transfer as reflected by licensing of intellectual property.

As a 'People First' institution, DCU is committed to Equality, Diversity and Inclusion - a University that helps staff and students to thrive. The University is a leader in terms of its work to increase access to education, and is placed in the world's Top 10 for reducing inequalities in the Times Higher Education Impact Rankings.

Overview of Communications and Marketing Department

The university's Communications and Marketing Department uses its expertise to enable DCU to tell its story effectively across many channels, showing its value and impact on lives and society. It manages all aspects of the reputation of DCU, at a central level and through its support of DCU's faculties, schools and academics. It comprises a number of strategically focussed teams, which includes Digital Communications, PR/Communications, Marketing and University Events.

This department is accountable for DCU's digital communications, online engagement, media relations, public relations, external and internal communications, media training and crisis and risk management for the university. It is also responsible for the planning, delivery and assistance of a wide range of high quality, professional in person and virtual university events. It manages the DCU brand and its positioning, all of its central advertising and marketing campaigns, web content, graphic design, videography/photography, and assists individual faculties and units in delivering effective marketing and advertising promotional campaigns and materials.

DCU Research Support Office

Professor John Doyle - DCU Vice President for Research, leads DCU's Research focus. Under his direction, the unit is accountable for championing a culture of research across the University, developing an effective research strategy and ensuring that effective research supports are in place. This is in line with the University's mission to ensure that its research has significant social and economic impact and to promote two-way Knowledge Transfer between the University and external partners in industry and society.

DCU has the research expertise, experience of success, and supports necessary to deliver high-quality, impactful research that both addresses the key challenges of our time, and also pushes the boundaries of new discovery. The research support office assists DCU researchers in their research work, with assistance in seeking external funding, in managing project administration and finances or in seeking access to core facilities.

The overall aim of the office is to assist the entire DCU community to conduct and publish high quality research and to maximise the impact of that research locally and globally.
