INTRA Programme BA in International Relations Honours Bachelor Degree (DC231)

Overview

The International Relations degree gives students insight into the major world issues that challenge and fascinate us today. Students examine the forces that shape contemporary societies, such as globalisation, international law, third-world debt and American foreign policy. They will also study key institutions like the European Union and the United Nations.

Students learn from academics with expertise in areas such as Terrorism and Counter-terrorism, European Union studies, Middle-Eastern studies, International Security and Conflict studies, International Law and Aid, and Development studies.

Skills

The programme also prepares students for the workforce by imparting broader abilities, such as oral and written communication skills, the capacity to think analytically, teamwork skills, and research techniques.

Careers

Students from Bachelor of Arts (Hons) in International Relations find work in the following areas;

- Policy Evaluation and Research
